"I took possession of the house in December, 1906," said this witness. "I bought it from Miss De Witt." "Do you recall Mr. Hitchcock?" said Mr. Garvan.

Stanchfield read it to the jurors. It was as follows:

"No. 33 East Twenty-seventh street.
Oct. II. 1897.

"Mr. Hitchcock: Dear Sir—I have been trying to have my daughter Helen released from the House of the Good Shepherd, where she was sent iast March by the Gerry Society, I have went to see the superintendent of the society, but I got no satisfaction. He omly acted in a mean way and told me Helen was sent away to be used as a witness against you, which I think was wrong.
